8 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

9 Plaintiff,

Case No. 2:04-CR-262 JCM (PAL)

ORDER

10 v.

11 DAVID KENT FITCH,

12 Defendant.

13 Presently before the court is petitioner David Kent Fitch's motion to vacate, set aside, or 14 correct sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. (ECF No. 358). The government filed a response (ECF 15 No. 368), to which petitioner replied (ECF No. 370).

16 Also before the court is petitioner's first "letter requesting clarification of status of 17 [petitioner's prior counsel]." (ECF No. 359).

18 Also before the court is petitioner's first motion to expedite. (ECF No. 360).

19 Also before the court is petitioner's second "letter . . . requesting clarification regarding 20 the status of [petitioner's prior counsel]." (ECF No. 364).

21 Also before the court is petitioner's second motion to expedite. (ECF No. 366).

22 Also before the court is petitioner's motion for a hearing regarding his § 2255 motion.
23 (ECF No. 369). The government filed a response (ECF No. 371), to which petitioner replied, 24 (ECF No. 375).

25 Also before the court is petitioner's motion to extend time regarding his motion for a 26 hearing. (ECF No. 372).

27 Also before the court is petitioner's motion for release on bail. (ECF No. 377). The 28 government filed a response, (ECF No. 379), to which petitioner replied, (ECF No. 380).

1 Also before the court is petitioner's motion for appointment of counsel. (ECF No. 381).
2 The government filed a response, (ECF No. 384), to which petitioner replied, (ECF No. 386).

3 I. Facts

4 In June of 2004, the government indicted petitioner in the underlying criminal case on 5 nine counts of bank fraud, two counts of fraudulent use of an access device, and two counts of 6 attempted fraudulent use of an access device.¹ Two superseding indictments were filed against 7 petitioner, adding two counts of laundering monetary instruments and one count of money
8 laundering.

9 On March 5, 2007, petitioner's counsel advised him of a plea offer submitted by the 10 government. (ECF No. 319). Counsel followed up with a detailed letter explaining the plea
11 offer. (ECF No. 368-1). In her letter to petitioner, counsel stated:

12 (1) The current plea offer is a reasonable resolution to this case and puts you in a 13 favorable position with regard to this case. (2) The problem with accepting the 14 current offer or any version thereof is that you'd be providing an admission to an 15 element of a first degree murder charge and possibly a death penalty prosecution.
(3) Going to trial in the federal case could yield a substantially worse result, or, your motion to dismiss could be granted. (4) The State has not brought a murder case against you in the past seven years, they may not ever do it, but yes, they could and they could do it at any time.

16 Defendant "elected to go to trial rather than [accept] the plea offer" because he believed 17 "the state was going to charge him with murder" and "the court could not sentence him above the 18 top of the guidelines." (ECF No. 319). On June 21, 2007, petitioner was convicted by a jury of 19 all charged counts. See (ECF No. 198).

20 The adjusted offense level for petitioner's conviction was twenty, which yielded an 21 advisory applicable guideline range of 41 to 51 months. See United States v. Fitch, 659 F.3d
22 788, 790 (9th Cir. 2011). At sentencing, the court found by clear and convincing evidence that 23 petitioner had murdered his wife and that her death was the means he used to commit his crimes.
24 See (ECF No. 224). The court made six specific factual findings in this regard:

25 [O]ne, Mr. Fitch failed to report his wife's disappearance to the police. If you have 26 a loved one who disappears, I think your first reaction is you report the disappearance to the police. Mr. Fitch didn't do that here.

27
28 ¹ For a detailed summary of the factual background of this case, see United States v. Fitch, 659 F.3d 788 (9th Cir. 2011).

1 Two, he told various stories concerning her whereabouts, that is that she had gone
2 to Vancouver, that she had returned to Romania, and that she had returned to 3 London. So he told different individuals that asked where she was and he would tell them one or the other of those stories, but the evidence was that he told various stories as to where she had gone.

4 Three, he tried to sell her clothing and personal effects, including her car.

5 Four, he remarried shortly after her disappearance without first seeking a divorce.
6 He cannot be married to be remarried, and so the first marriage has to be terminated, and I think here it was terminated by the death of Ms. Bozi.

7 Five, he had possession of her checkbook, her credit cards, and other personal 8 information that she would have on—that any person would have on their person.

9 And, six, he raided her accounts and credit cards by deception[,] either disguises or 10 forgery[,] and he withdrew the daily limit of $1,000.00 from her ATM—or from her bank's ATM over a period of about two weeks while wearing disguises.

11 The court applied a fifteen level upward departure, which resulted in an adjusted offense level of 12 35. Given defendant's criminal history, the sentencing range was 210 to 262 months. The court 13 sentenced petitioner to a 262-month term of incarceration.

14 Petitioner appealed and raised multiple challenges to the conviction and sentence. See 15 Fitch, 659 F.3d 788. The Ninth Circuit rejected all the challenges and affirmed. See id. The 16 Supreme Court denied a petition for a writ of certiorari. Fitch v. United States, 133 S.Ct. 175 17 (2012).

18 On October 25, 2013, petitioner filed a motion to vacate, amend, or correct his sentence
19 pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255. (ECF No. 319). On October 30, 2014, this court denied without 20 prejudice petitioner's motion to vacate on the grounds that petitioner was represented by counsel
21 and could not file motions pro se. (ECF No. 342). On January 11, 2017, the Ninth Circuit
22 vacated and remanded "for consideration of [petitioner's] pro se 28 U.S.C. § 2255 motion."
23 (ECF No. 357).

24 II. Legal Standard

25 Federal prisoners "may move . . . to vacate, set aside or correct [their] sentence" if the 26 court imposed the sentence "in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States"
27 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a). Section 2255 relief should be granted only where "a fundamental defect"
28 caused "a complete miscarriage of justice." Davis v. United States, 417 U.S. 333, 345 (1974);

1 see also Hill v. United States, 368 U.S. 424, 428 (1962).

2 Limitations on § 2255 motions are based on the fact that the movant “already has had a 3 fair opportunity to present his federal claims to a federal forum,” whether or not he took 4 advantage of the opportunity. United States v. Frady, 456 U.S. 152, 164 (1982). Section 2255
5 “is not designed to provide criminal defendants multiple opportunities to challenge their 6 sentence.” United States v. Johnson, 988 F.2d 941, 945 (9th Cir. 1993).

7 III. Discussion

8 a. Petitioner’s motion for appointment of counsel

9 The Constitution does not guarantee a right to counsel for prisoners who bring collateral
10 attacks on their sentence. Pennsylvania v. Finley, 481 U.S. 551, 555 (1987). However, federal 11 district courts may order appointment of counsel for indigent defendants pursuing relief under § 12 2255 when the court “determines that the interests of justice so require. 18 U.S.C.
13 § 3006A(2)(B). “In deciding whether to appoint counsel in a habeas proceeding, the district
14 court must evaluate the likelihood of success on the merits as well as the ability of the petitioner
15 to articulate his claims pro se in light of the complexity of the legal issues involved.” Weygandt
16 v. Look, 718 F.2d 952, 954 (9th Cir. 1983).

17 Here, the court will deny petitioner’s motion to appoint counsel to assist with his § 2255
18 motion. Petitioner’s § 2255 motion discusses Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit sentencing 19 precedent in depth, and demonstrates that petitioner can capably “articulate his claims pro se.”
20 Weygandt, 718 F.2d at 954.

21 Further, petitioner’s request for appointment of counsel comes after his § 2255 motion
22 has been fully briefed. The interests of justice do not favor appointment of counsel in this case.
23 See 18 U.S.C. § 3006A(2)(B)

24 b. Petitioner’s § 2255 motion

25 i. Whether any of petitioner’s claims are time-barred

26 Section 2255 provides for a one year limitation period in which to file a motion to vacate 27 a federal conviction. 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f). Under Habeas Corpus Rule 2(c), petitioners must 28 “specify all [available] grounds for relief and [] state the facts supporting each ground.” Mayle

1 v. Felix, 545 U.S. 644, 661 (2005). Amended claims filed outside the one-year statute of 2 limitations period that do not relate back to “conduct, transaction[s], or occurrence[s]” raised in 3 an initial § 2255 motion are time barred. Id. at 661-64.

4 Here, petitioner argues that “the ‘relation back doctrine’ is inapplicable when the initial 5 habeas petition was dismissed, because there is no pleading in which to relate back.” (ECF No.
6 370 (citing Raspberry v. Garcia, 448 F.3d 1150, 1155 (9th Cir. 2006)). Petitioner’s argument
7 assumes that this court’s denial of petitioner’s initial § 2255 motion constituted a final judgment
8 that “dismissed” the motion. However, in this case, the Ninth Circuit “remanded to the district 9 court for consideration of [petitioner’s] pro se 28 U.S.C. § 2255 motion.” (ECF No. 357).
10 Therefore, the holding in Raspberry is inapplicable to this case because petitioner’s initial § 2255
11 motion functions as the operative pleading to which the amended petition relates back.
12 Accordingly, any claim brought in the amended petition that does not relate back to “conduct, 13 transaction[s], or occurrence[s]” raised in petitioner’s initial § 2255 motion is time barred. See 14 Mayle, 545 U.S. at 661.

15 A. Petitioner’s second claim for relief

16 Petitioner’s second claim for relief alleges ineffective assistance of counsel for not 17 disclosing a plea offer made on March 5, 2007. (ECF No. 358). However, petitioner’s initial 18 petition contains factual allegations that contradict his current petition. Compare (ECF No. 319),
19 with (ECF No. 358). In petitioner’s initial petition, he states that he “was offered a plea bargain 20 on March 5, 2007.” (ECF No. 319). Therefore, plaintiff’s second claim for relief is time-barred 21 as it was not brought within the applicable statute of limitations. See Mayle, 545 U.S. at 661.

22 B. Petitioner’s third claim for relief

23 Petitioner’s third claim for relief alleges that trial counsel provided ineffective assistance 24 by failing to argue that the district court’s factual findings were not supported by clear and 25 convincing evidence. (ECF No. 358). Petitioner did not raise this argument in his initial 26 petition. See (ECF No. 319). Therefore, plaintiff’s third claim for relief is time-barred as it was 27 not brought within the applicable statute of limitations. See Mayle, 545 U.S. at 661.

28 ///

1 ii. Petitioner's remaining claims for relief

2 Petitioner's remaining claims for relief allege ineffective assistance of counsel. See (ECF
3 No. 358).

4 Defendants have a Sixth Amendment right to counsel, a right that extends to the plea-
5 bargaining process. Lafler v. Cooper, 132 S.Ct. 1376, 1384 (2012) (citing Padilla v. Kentucky, 6 130 S.Ct. 1473, 1486 (2010); Hill, v. Lockhard, 474 U.S. 52, 57 (2011)). During plea
7 negotiations defendants are "entitled to the effective assistance of competent counsel." Lafler, 8 132 S.Ct. at 1384 (quoting McMann v. Richardson, 397 U.S. 759, 771 (1970)).

9 In Hill, the Court held "the two-part Strickland v. Washington test applies to challenges to 10 guilty pleas based on ineffective assistance of counsel." Hill, 474 U.S., at 58. To prevail on a 11 claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, a defendant must show deficient performance and 12 prejudice. Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 687 (1984). To establish deficient
13 performance, a challenger must show that "counsel's representation fell below an objective
14 standard of reasonableness." Id. at 688. When considering this claim, a court must apply a 15 "'strong presumption' that counsel's representation was within the 'wide range' of reasonable 16 professional assistance." Harrington v. Richter, 131 S. Ct. 770, 787 (2010) (citations omitted).
17 To show prejudice, a challenger must demonstrate "a reasonable probability that, but for 18 counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different."
19 Strickland, 466 U.S. at 694.

20 A. Petitioner's first claim for relief

21 Petitioner's first claim for relief alleges that trial and appellate counsel provided
22 ineffective assistance by failing to argue that petitioner's sentence violated the Sixth
23 Amendment. (ECF No. 358). Petitioner argues that at sentencing the judge "found [petitioner]
24 guilty of first degree murder," and unconstitutionally sentenced him accordingly. Id.

25 Here, petitioner was convicted of bank fraud, fraudulent use of an access device,
26 attempted fraudulent use of an access device, laundering monetary instruments, and money
27 laundering. The court ultimately sentenced petitioner to 262 months incarceration, less than the 28 statutory maximum for one conviction of bank fraud and well less than the combined statutory

1 maximum for all convicted crimes.²

2 Petitioner's Sixth Amendment analysis misses the mark. A fundamental premise of 3 petitioner's first claim for relief is that reasonable jurists could disagree as to whether petitioner's
4 sentence violated the Sixth Amendment. The Ninth Circuit opinion affirming petitioner's 5 underlying conviction analyzed applicable Sixth Amendment precedent, and held that the 6 sentence imposed by this court did not violate petitioner's Sixth Amendment rights. Fitch, 659
7 F.3d at 794-95. Trial counsel explained as much to petitioner in a letter written to him prior to 8 sentencing.³ See (ECF No. 368-1 at 159-60). Instead of fighting a Sisyphean battle to 9 fundamentally alter Sixth Amendment precedent, trial and appellate counsel chose to attack
10 petitioner's conviction and sentence on other grounds. See (ECF No. 218) (arguing that the 11 federal government should not have pursued a second criminal case based on conduct that 12 formed the basis of petitioner's guilty plea in his first federal criminal case); see also Fitch, 659
13 F.3d 788.

14 "[D]isagreement with trial counsel's tactical decision[s] cannot form the basis for a claim 15 of ineffective assistance of counsel." Wildman v. Johnson, 261 F.3d 832, 839 (9th Cir. 2001).
16 Here, petitioner's argument boils down to a strategic disagreement. Therefore, petitioner's first 17 claim for relief does not set forth a cognizable claim for ineffective assistance of counsel. See

20 ² The maximum statutory sentence for bank fraud at the time was thirty (30) years. 18
21 U.S.C. § 1344. If the court imposed the maximum statutory sentences for all of petitioner's
22 convicted crimes consecutively, petitioner's sentence would have been 360 years. See Fitch, 659
23 F.3d at 795, n.6.

24 ³ Counsel's letter reads, in part:

25 What I have explained to you numerous times is that Booker and Rita do 26 not stand for the proposition that you want them to stand for: that a jury must make 27 a finding as to any relevant conduct that can be considered to enhance your 28 sentence. Those cases do not instruct the district court to disregard relevant conduct not found by a jury or not admitted by you. The dissent in Rita discusses this problem. I provided you the most current case law so that you can attempt to digest the complexity of the issues that pertain to your case. I have never told you that I will not make reference to Booker or to Rita. Unfortunately, those cases do not get you where you want to be.

I will make arguments that preserve your rights on appeal, including your Sixth Amendment right to a jury trial. . . .

1 Wildman, 361 F.3d at 839. Accordingly, petitioner cannot establish deficient performance or 2 prejudice on these facts. See Strickland, 466 U.S. at 687.

3 B. Petitioner's fourth claim for relief

4 Petitioner's fourth claim for relief alleges that trial counsel provided ineffective 5 assistance by (1) failing to inform petitioner whether the state prosecutor had responded to the 6 AUSA's inquiry regarding the state's intentions on charging petitioner with murder; (2)
7 erroneously advising petitioner to go to trial; and (3) failing to tell petitioner that if he refused the 8 plea offer the government would request a sentencing enhancement. (ECF No. 358).

9 Petitioner's fourth claim for relief fails because petitioner cannot allege constitutionally 10 deficient performance on behalf of trial counsel. See Strickland, 466 U.S. at 687.

11 First, trial counsel adequately explained the possible criminal charges that the state of 12 Nevada could bring against petitioner and the impact of petitioner's federal case on any state
13 prosecution. Counsel informed plaintiff that the state's case at that point was "circumstantial"
14 and likely difficult to prove. (ECF No. 319-1). Counsel discussed the impact of any factual 15 admissions in the plea agreement and the law regarding inadmissibility of prior convictions when 16 a defendant chooses not to testify at trial. Id. Counsel also noted that any plea agreement in 17 petitioner's federal case would not be binding on the state,⁴ who could seek the death penalty for 18 a murder charge. Id.

19 Second, petitioner offers no support for his argument that trial counsel advised him that it
20 was in his best interest to go to trial. Further, the argument is directly contradicted by trial
21 counsel's declaration and supporting evidence. (ECF No. 368-1). Counsel's letter to petitioner 22 made clear that it was petitioner's choice whether to accept the plea, and advised him of 23 numerous potential benefits and ramifications of accepting the plea bargain. See id. ("Resolving
24 your current case is easy. It is protecting you against other unwanted, possible future 25 consequences that is difficult.").

26
27 ⁴ Petitioner's counsel did note that she would attempt to determine whether the state would 28 agree to a global plea agreement, but stated her belief that the probability of obtaining a global plea agreement was quite small. (ECF No. 368-1).

1 Finally, counsel advised petitioner of the risk associated with proceeding to trial and 2 rejecting the plea agreement. Counsel advised petitioner that if he accepted the plea agreement, 3 the government would not seek a sentence beyond 37 months. Id. However, counsel noted that 4 proceeding to trial without a plea agreement exposed petitioner to an “unpredictable” range of 5 possible sentences. Id.

6 Petitioner’s fourth claim for relief fails to allege a cognizable claim for ineffective
7 assistance of counsel.

8 C. Petitioner’s fifth claim for relief

9 Petitioner’s fifth claim for relief alleges that trial and appellate counsel provided
10 ineffective assistance by erroneously relying on the 1998 United States sentencing guidelines
11 instead of the 2006 sentencing guidelines. (ECF No. 358).

12 District courts are required to apply the guidelines in effect at the time of sentencing
13 unless doing so would violate the ex post facto clause. U.S.S.G. § 1B1.11(a), (b)(1); 18 U.S.C. §
14 3553(a)(4)(A)(ii). All sentencing proceedings are to begin by determining the applicable
15 guidelines range, which must be calculated correctly. See Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 49
16 (2007) (citing Rita v. United States, 551 U.S. 338, 347-48 (2007)).

17 Here, petitioner’s cumulative offense level after grouping would have been 20 regardless 18 of which guidelines the court applied. See (ECF No. 222 at 8); PSR. In order to avoid an ex post 19 facto issue regarding the 1999 guidelines amendments (which imposed greater and additional 20 enhancements related to access device and bank fraud crimes), the court used the 1998
21 guidelines. In his declaration, appellate counsel admits that “the 1998 version of the Guidelines 22 was the correct version to use in order to avoid any ex post facto issues.” (ECF No. 368-2).
23 Counsel was not deficient for failing to raise a legally unsound argument that would have 24 exposed petitioner to a higher adjusted offense level. See Wildman, 261 F.3d at 840 (holding 25 that failure to raise an unmeritorious argument cannot constitute ineffective assistance of 26 counsel).

27 ///

28 ///

1 iii. Summary

2 Petitioner's motion fails to demonstrate that either trial or appellate counsel provided
3 ineffective assistance. Petitioner raises two new arguments in his amended petition that do not
4 relate back to his original petition, and are therefore time-barred. Petitioner's timely-filed
5 arguments rely on distortions of fact regarding the assistance provided by counsel in this case
6 and on petitioner's incorrect readings of Sixth Amendment and sentencing guideline
7 jurisprudence. The court will deny petitioner's motion to vacate, set aside, or amend his 8 sentence.

9 c. Petitioner's motion for an evidentiary hearing

10 Petitioner filed a motion for an evidentiary hearing regarding his motion to vacate.
11 Where a § 2255 motion is based on alleged occurrences outside the record, no hearing is required
12 if the allegations, "viewed against the record, either fail to state a claim for relief or are 'so 13 palpably incredible or patently frivolous as to warrant summary dismissal.'" Marrow v. United 14 States, 772 F.2d 525, 526 (9th Cir. 1985) (quoting United States v. Schaflander, 743 F.2d 714, 15 717 (9th Cir. 1984)). The Ninth Circuit has recognized that where the issue of credibility can be 16 conclusively decided on the basis of documentary testimony and evidence in the record, no
17 evidentiary hearing is required. United States v. Espinoza, 866 F.2d 1067, 1069 (9th Cir. 1989)
18 (quotations omitted).

19 The court denies the request for an evidentiary hearing because, as discussed above, the 20 record before the court "conclusively shows" that petitioner is not entitled to relief. 28 U.S.C. §
21 2255(b); Farrow v. United States, 580 F.2d 1339, 1360–61 (9th Cir. 1978) (en banc).

22 d. Petitioner's other outstanding motions

23 As the court has denied petitioner's motion to vacate, set aside, or correct sentence under 24 28 U.S.C. § 2255, petitioner's motion for appointment of counsel, and petitioner's motion for an 25 evidentiary hearing, petitioner's other outstanding motions in this case are moot.

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 e. Certificate of appealability

2 The court declines to issue a certificate of appealability. The controlling statute in 3 determining whether to issue a certificate of appealability is 28 U.S.C. § 2253, which provides as 4 follows:

5 (a) In a habeas corpus proceeding or a proceeding under section 2255 before a 6 district judge, the final order shall be subject to review, on appeal, by the court of appeals for the circuit in which the proceeding is held.

7 (b) There shall be no right of appeal from a final order in a proceeding to test the 8 validity of a warrant to remove to another district or place for commitment or trial 9 a person charged with a criminal offense against the United States, or to test the validity of such person's detention pending removal proceedings.

10 (c)
11 (1) Unless a circuit justice or judge issues a certificate of appealability, an 12 appeal may not be taken to the court of appeals from—13 (A) the final order in a habeas corpus proceeding in which the 14 detention complained of arises out of process issued by a State court;
15 or
16 (B) the final order in a proceeding under section 2255.
17 (2) A certificate of appealability may issue under paragraph (1) only if the 18 applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional 19 right.
20 (3) The certificate of appealability under paragraph (1) shall indicate which 21 specific issue or issues satisfy the showing required by paragraph (2).

22 28 U.S.C. § 2253.

23 Under § 2253, the court may issue a certificate of appealability only when a movant
24 makes a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). To 25 make a substantial showing, the movant must establish that “reasonable jurists could debate
26 whether (or, for that matter, agree that) the petition should have been resolved in a different 27 manner or that the issues presented were ‘adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed 28 further.’” Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000) (citation omitted).

29 The court holds that petitioner has not made the required substantial showing of the 30 denial of a constitutional right to justify the issuance of a certificate of appealability. Reasonable 31 jurists would not find the court’s determination that movant is not entitled to relief under § 2255
32 debatable, wrong, or deserving of encouragement to proceed further. Accordingly, the court 33 declines to issue a certificate of appealability.

34 ///

1 IV. Conclusion

2 Accordingly,

3 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that petitioner's motion to 4 vacate, set aside, or correct sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 (ECF No. 358) be, and the 5 same hereby is, DENIED.

6 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's first "letter requesting clarification of 7 status of [petitioner's prior counsel]" (ECF No. 359) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED as 8 moot.

9 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's first motion to expedite review (ECF No.
10 360) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED as moot.

11 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's second "letter. . . requesting clarification 12 regarding the status of [petitioner's prior counsel]" (ECF No. 364) be, and the same hereby is, 13 DENIED as moot.

14 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's second motion to expedite review (ECF 15 No. 366) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED as moot.

16 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's motion for an evidentiary hearing (ECF 17 No. 369) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED.

18 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner's motion to extend time to file a reply in
